The Indian Historical Review (IHR) addresses research interest in all areas of historical studies, ranging from early times to contemporary history. While its focus is on the Indian subcontinent, it has carried historical writings on other parts of the world as well. Committed to excellence in scholarship and accessibility in style, the IHR welcomes articles which deal with recent advancements in the study of history and discussion of method in relation to empirical research.

All articles, including those which are commissioned, are independently and confidentially refereed. The IHR will aim to promote the work of new scholars in the field. In order to create a forum for discussion, it will be interested in particular in writings which critically respond to articles previously published in this journal. The IHR has been published since 1974 by the Indian Council of Historical Research.

It is edited by Sabyasachi Bhattacharya, Editor-in-Chief, and an Editorial Board appointed by the Council with the Member Secretary, ICHR, as the Managing Editor. The Council also obtains the advice and support of the journal's Advisory Committee, which consists of eminent scholars working in the area of Indian historical studies in India and abroad.

Manuscripts and editorial correspondence should be addressed to ms@ichr.ac.in, or editor@ichr.ac.in, or Managing Editor, IHR, 35 Ferozeshah Road, New Delhi-110001.
